Suggest that terms of reference should include some comparative analysis of what other jurisdictions have in place for management / control / interaction for human sources including any public interest tests and trigger points that may activate such considerations. I don't know a whole lot about the background but the process may not be considered to be overly robust if it only focuses on Vicpol cases and policies. I sense it may be helpful to know if our controls measure up or if they are lax compared to others.

I will be seeing Neil in the morning. Am I at liberty to discuss this (the draft terms of reference) with him?

Agree and happy to chat with Steve and assist where possible. The attached is a very rough draft that I provided to the CCP for the purposes of informing his recent meeting with Neil. A starting point nonetheless. Also I made some inquiries re procurement. While we currently anticipate this may not go over the $25k mark it is prudent I think to do a certificate of exemption, which should only take an hour or less, just in case it does sneak over - it will save a lot of grief. Andrew Loader indicated a willingness to assist in getting the words right but an inquiry of this nature will always meet the threshold.

I have created a yellow back for this inquiry which is in my safe - shall I bring over and hand to Steve?

Also, are you still right to pay?

Regards

JP

I suggest we have Steve Gleeson work on this to settle the terms as he will be the Vicpol support person for Neil

. He is back on deck next Wednesday.
